This Shows That the Abbye Is a Good Rule for Christians.

"Don't ever attempt to make a pas-toral call on M. and his wife. The old man is a terror to ministers, and do clares if one ever darkens his doors he will drive him out." So said a friend to the writer during the early part of his pastorate in B----, N. Y. The old gentleman referred to had, for some reason which nobody seemed to know, conceived a dislike for elergymen. and even a hatred of them. He had boldly proclaimed his adversion to all minis ters, no matter what denomination, and declared that when he died no minister should attend his funeral, until he was known in the town as the man who hated ministers. Hence the warning of my friend.

Amid the busy cares of pastoral labor the old couple and the warning passed out of my mind. Months afterward a member of our church, the mother of three little ones, lay on what proved to be her dying bed. She sent for her pas-tor. Beautiful day-everything went off lovely. First class singing; well sejected music both as to sentiment and air. All the choirs did well-calling forth the applause of the Convention every time. They deserve high commendation for their efforts.

Four ministers last year one this! It is hoped that more of them may be able to get out next year. We think that their presence will give greater importance to S. S. Work and so encourage the officers and teachers and draw out the parents.

The writer surely did enjoy meeting with the Pres. S. S. C. of Western North Carolina. He thinks that there remains for them a crown.

Rendall Notes.

One of our teachers often told the boys never to obey Satan for he would never tell us to do any good thing, but we have found a case of o'clock to meet in Cameron church, late where we wish the man had obeyed for we believe that one time in six thousand years the Devil was right. A certain man has the habit of making long, dry talks that kill out the prayermeetings. About six-fifths of his time is in praise of himself and family One night he sat still and we began to rejoie that he would keep still one time, when up he jumped saying that "Satan had tried to keep me from saying any thing to-night." Then he told us about his mules, farm-crops his fine carraiage, then he ended by pointing poor sinners to his college educated children and his own noble self as examples worthy for us to follow. Before he quit we were fully persuaded that Satan was right in try ing to keep him from talking that time.

Result nobody at prayer-meeting for the next three weeks. (Omit thinking this happened in the Booneville Church.)

Mexican Mustang iniment.

A Cure for the Ailments of Man and Beast.

A long-tested pain reliever.

Its use is almost universal by the Housewife, the Farmer, the Stock Raiser, and by every one requiring an effective liniment.

No other application compares with it in efficacy.

This well-known remedy has stood the test of years, almost generations.

No medicine chest is complete without a bottle of MUSTANG LINIMENT.

Occasions arise for its use almost every day. All druggists and dealers have it.

You receive $3.331 for every $7 (seven dollars) paid in.

You can receive a loan after three years. which will enable you to make the first payment on a home, and additional loans will be made to you every year thereafter as long as you continue your savings, Commence to save to-day. Do not wain until you are too old to work, for each day brings you one day nearer to the time when you will be unable to do so.

Your first hundred or thousand dollars s the hardest to get together; after that start, the rest will be much easier made. Address or call

SOCIAL DIFFERENCES INEVITABLE.

Dr. J. M. Buckley Explains the Impossi-island, the straggle between man and nature would begin at once. They might live to the full limit of human life without once having the problems of civil and social inequalities thrust upon them. Such terms as "civil gov ernment," "rights of property," "laws of inheritance," "private property," "capital and labor." "higher and lower classes," and the ideas for which they stand, might never be known to them. But as the population increased, restrictions on the use of property and government in some form would be required. After a few generations, among the multitude varying degrees of ability, physical and mental, would be found. Social differences would arise, and be perpetuated by dissimilar environments

That which would inevitably occur on such an island manifests itself in all parts of the world. Customs and laws differ, but wherever society exists several general distinctions appear. The poor, including not only paupers d the indigent, but those who earn barely enough to support them, and whom the sickness of two or three days would transform into objects of charity, constitute in most countries an immense majority.

In the United States, owing to extent of territory. fertility of soil, mineral resources, timber, navigable rivers, sea coast, variety of climate, isolation and the need of development, the poor have been less numerous than in the Old World, but they are now increasing more rapidly than heretofore.

At the other extreme are the rich, the mere income of whose possessions at current interest, with only the care necessary to superintend their investments, is sufficient to support them in luxury, though many of them may continue in business for its pleasure and power, or in the hope of adding to their wealth. Between these is the great middle class, having "neither riches nor poverty," subdivided into those who are hopefully pressing upward to the envied station of the rich, and those who, from infirmity, losses, the rise of new modes of transacting business to which they cannot adapt themselves, and misfortunes, are declining toward Intellectual gifts and acquisitions make other distinctions. In all nations the number of the ignorant is far greater than that of the learned, while in the first powers of the globe a large number are well informed.-Dr. J. M. Buckley in Harper's.

A Feather Duster.

When you dress a white hen for market or your table be careful to keep the wings clean and unbroken. Sprinkle the joints with a little salt, that they may dry and cure more perfectly, and then cover the joint end of the wing with a bright scrap of plush or velvet to the depth of three inches.

I made several of these dainty white dusters for Christmas presents, and they were very pretty as well as useful. I feather stitched the blue plush that covered the handle with old gold embroidery silk, making three bars of stitching down the back of the plush, finishing the duster with a pretty bow and long loop of blue or old gold ribbon, - Clarissa Potter in Good THE HILLS OF LYNN.

We wandered down the hills of Lynn, We wandered down the kills of Lynn My love and I together; Ciralas chanting fine and thin Made masked the heather; Whith the vale the hamps, like stars showe in the duck, and ruddy Mars On his high penhon floated; O love! O love! a song bird there Shing for us silver throated.

h. pleasant are the hills of Lynn a summer greenly growing ach stars the twilight usher in, the reapers from the mowing me_whistling homeward through the grade, And each one watches for the maid To him most dear and pleasing, While down the lanes the loaded wains Creak after, loadly wheezing.

The hills of Lynn, to me so dear, How shall I tread them lonely? My sweet love is not with me here Yon moon muchs see shape only One shadow drawn across the gra Where once were two, deer lave, mass Fd fain be here hild sleeping: For wandering down the hills of Lynn Alone, sets me a-weeping.

The fills of Lynn, oh, the fills of Lynn, Where we used to walk together! I wish me dead on the fills of Lynn At the end of the golden weather. I wish me dead in a cold, cold shroud, Beneath the withered clover, For since he I at gone has come a cloud The golden hillslopes over. }

Woman's Place in Journalism

The arrival of woman in journalism not news of this year or last. Her place in the world of newspapers is well defined. She is there because there is need for her in fields that man cannot She, has come to stay, not "until somebody calls her off," but until the professional career of a lifetime is over. Think of some of the female press writers in our own eity-Mrs. Sangster, Mise Gilder, Mary Mapes Dodge, Miss French, Marion Harland, Jennie June, Mrs. Heaton, Kate Upson Clark, Midy Morgan, Mrs. Chittenden, Nellie Bly, Miss Bisland and Mrs. Archer. Are these ladies triflers in their profession? lished as those of male writers?

Do not many of them do work that men could not do, which constitutes a special province of female journalism? Fancy a mere man undertaking to edit the woman's page of a daily paper. It is necessary that there should be a lighter branch of woman's literature, is well as the more serious. Passe menterie ought to be well described as one of the topics that interest the dies. household. Juliet Corson and her fellow laborers in gastronomic education have done not a little for American health. It is thoughtless cynicism to deny that there is in journalistic work a growing demand for female talent. -Mansfield in New York Recorder.

In considering the requirements of modern housekeeping, take, for instance, one feature-that of plumbing. Searcely a householder but has experienced the ills resulting from bursting or leaking pipes--ills which entail greatinconvenience to the feminine than o the masculine members of the family; therefore it should naturally follow that the mistress would be specially interested in proventing or ameliorat ing such disasters, and that the subject would receive at least a portion of the intelligent thought she is so willing to bestow in other directions. It is a lamentable fact, however, that in an emergency not one woman in fifty knows how to turn off the water supply, not to speak of arresting a leak, of to matter how infinitesimal proportions.-New York Post.

The Champion Bible Reader. Robert T. Barker, of New Bedford, fass., has read the Bible through no ess than 100 times, it is reported. He began reading it in 1368, out of sheer curiosity, and had it finished before he Well, you ought to see it. It searcely realized it. Cultivating the Rubber Tree. The threatened dearth in the world's supply of rubber has led to the formation of a syndicate to cultivate the rubber tree on a large scale. In Ceylon deps have already been taken to earry out the same idea by sowing the seed of the cerea in patches of jungle, and the supply of rubber from that island es to be, in a few years, double what it is at present. Encouraged by the apparent success of this experiment, the syndicate proposes to carry on the rubber cultivation on several large estates in the southern part of Mexico, not far from the gulf, where the cli-mate will be most favorable for their operations. The rubber tree grows with great repidity, and a tree of average size will yield about twenty gallons of milk which is equal to forty pounds of dried rabber. From the testimony of experts it is found that this yield will give a handsome return on the capital to be invested.-New York Telegram.

Mistook a Snake for a Fence Rail. Joseph Graham, of Jones district, had fed his hogs the other morning and was leaning on the fence looking at them eat when he felt something chilly fondling and caressing him in a peculiarly carnest way about the head, face and neck. He saw at once that he had placed his elbow about midway on the body of a king snake, several feet long, and was holding him fast down on the rail, and, as you would suppose, both ends of the snake being loose, they cut ap vigorous and rapid capers about Mr. Mr. Graham Graham's countenance. ays he took his elbow off as soon as he found that the snake did not want it to stay on.-Eastman Times-Journal.

The company formed to construct the Brooklyn bridge was incorporated in 1867, with a capital of $5,000,000, of which $3,000,000 was to be contributed by the city of Brooklyn. $1,500,000 by the city of New York and $500,000 by private individuals.
